PLENARY SESSIONS

REMINDER: You can access the following Plenary and other sessions recorded at the in-person PBI Annual Conference, March 8-10, in Washington, D.C., on demand by logging in to the Annual Conference website with your registration email address and confirmation number, which was included in your Welcome to the Conference and Virtual Conference daily emails.

The Supreme Court: A[nother] Critical Juncture?

The work of the Supreme Court of the United States has always been ripe for controversial discussion and debate. Yet, current controversy appears to have moved the Court to a critical juncture that could have dramatic and long-lasting effects. Is the “shadow docket” growing while the “merit” docket is shrinking? Should Congress reform the structure of the Court? Can the Court maintain its institutional integrity? This session will address these important questions and more and will include a look at recent key cases and the upcoming docket.

Innovations in Access to Justice: State Courts’ Response to the Pandemic

The Conference of Chief Justices and the Conference of State Court Administrators (together with the National Center for State Courts) has embarked on a number of projects to support, implement and assess sustainable innovations across courts throughout the United States in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. This session will discuss important access to justice work being done by state and local courts across the country, including the move to remote hearings and preparing for the influx of eviction cases, and will focus on court innovations that impact low-income and underserved communities.

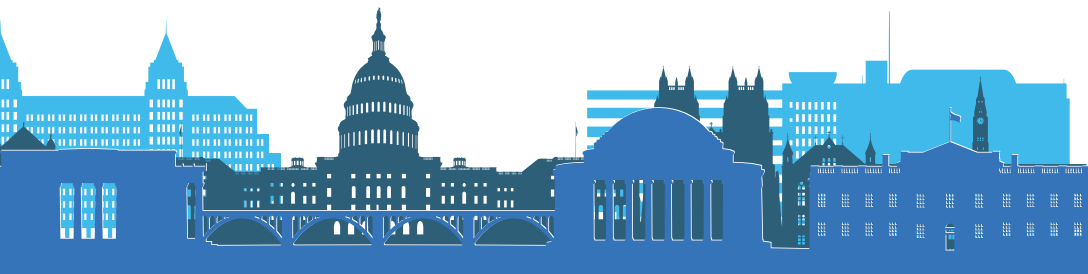

Foundations of Mindfulness

Jon Krop, Founder, Mindfulness for Lawyers

This workshop gives legal professionals the fundamental skills to bring calm, clarity, and focus into their lives and work. Participants learn a simple, effective meditation method and other mindfulness tools, calibrated for a legal professional’s busy workday, that sharpen focus, calm the mind, and cultivate resilience in the face of anxiety and stress. They leave with everything they need to establish a robust mindfulness practice that will improve performance and well-being.

After graduating from Harvard Law School, Krop clerked on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and worked as a litigator at firms in Los Angeles and New York City.

He has practiced mindfulness since 2006 and has studied with teachers from around the world, including psychologists, neuroscientists, and traditional Buddhist masters. In 2014, Krop completed a seven-month silent meditation retreat.

2022 LAURIE D. ZELON PRO BONO AWARDEE

DAVID STERN Executive Director Equal Justice Works

Pro Bono Institute was pleased to honor David Stern, Equal Justice Works Executive Director, with the 2022 Laurie D. Zelon Pro Bono Award. PBI presented the award at a special event during the PBI Annual Conference in March. This award is presented each year to an individual or organization that has demonstrated exceptional commitment to pro bono legal services.

"Throughout my career, I've always been passionate about justice and creating opportunities for law students and lawyers to make an impact in our communities, and our country," said Stern. "Receiving this award from the Pro Bono Institute is deeply humbling because of our shared commitment and enthusiasm for expanding access to justice for people most in need."

Stern joined Equal Justice Works, then known as the National Association for Public Interest Law (NAPIL), in 1992 to establish a postgraduate fellowship program, and in 1995, he was promoted to executive director.

During his tenure as executive director, the organization has grown significantly, partnering with more than 90% of ABA-accredited law schools to advance the Equal Justice Works mission to create pathways for lawyers to engage in public interest law. Under his leadership, Equal Justice Works has facilitated more than 2,500 public interest fellowships, with 85% of Fellows continuing to serve the public following their fellowship. Fellows have engaged countless legal professionals from law firms and in-house legal departments nationwide in pro bono legal service.

"It's only fitting that PBI honor David in this, his year of retirement," said Eve Runyon, PBI President and CEO. "We are thrilled to celebrate his many contributions to public interest law and a truly illustrious career."

PBI's long-standing relationship with Stern and Equal Justice Works dates back to the organization's infancy, when PBI's late founder Esther F. Lardent brought NAPIL's founder, Michael Caudell-Feagan, to a meeting with the U.S. District Court judge overseeing the distribution of cy pres funds in a major class action antitrust case. Judge Ann Claire Williams, who would be dubbed the "Mother of NAPIL," awarded $2.3 million dollars to launch the organization's fellowship program.

Lardent subsequently served on the Equal Justice Works Board of Directors for several years, as did Laurie D. Zelon for whom PBI's award is named.

Stern has been recognized as a "Champion of Change" by the White House, as one of "The 100 Most Influential Lawyers in America" by The National Law Journal, and as one of the "Greatest Washington Lawyers in the Past 30 Years" by The Legal Times. In 2006, he was honored by the Mississippi Center for Justice for bringing national attention to the legal needs of survivors of Hurricane Katrina and for creating Equal Justice Works' Katrina Initiative, which deployed lawyers to the Gulf Coast region to help thousands of people left without homes, jobs, or social services.

Stern has volunteered on voter protection, election integrity, and advises Fellows and other public interest lawyers on pro bono projects.

He is a member of the Legal Services Corporation's Leaders Council, which is dedicated to raising public awareness of the crisis in civil legal aid nationwide. Stern has served on the boards of the Center for Responsive Politics, the Constitutional Accountability Center, Georgetown Day School, and served on the Advisory Boards of the J. Skelly Wright Fellowship Committee at Yale Law School, and the National Center for Medical-Legal Partnership. He serves on the Advisory Committee for Voices for Civil Justice, a nonpartisan communications hub advancing fairness in America's legal system.

He received his B.A. from Union College and his J.D. from Georgetown University. Following law school, he clerked for two federal judges in Baltimore and worked for a public interest civil rights law firm before joining Equal Justice Works.

PBI applauds David Stern for his continuing dedication to pro bono and access to justice.

A simple, small act can create ripples that become waves. WBD's Pro Bono Program is built around the idea that even small steps can have a far-reaching, positive impact. We believe law firms should be at the forefront of increasing access to legal services for those with limited means, and our Pro Bono Committee ensures projects are coordinated to be locally focused to make a powerful difference. Our efforts have included helping victims of domestic violence, assisting tenants subject to eviction, protecting the rights of refugees in the asylum process and helping abused and neglected children in guardian ad litem appeals.
